Description of shares held on the Canadian Register

Shares held on the Canadian register are held in two distinct ways:

- i) Shares which are held in the Canadian Depository for Securities ("CDS") are represented by one account on the register. These shares are held in the nominee name of CDS & Co, in a book position. Each evening Computershare receives a CDS participant/nominee list from CDS. This list displays the position held by each Canadian participant/nominee/broker. The client can have access to this list through issuer online.
- ii) Shares held outside of CDS are represented by a share certificate and are held on the register in the shareholders name.
